Trending Hashtags

🐦 Trending Hashtags

- 🟥 = Hashtags Supportive of Trump
- 🟦 = Hashtags Supportive of Clinton
- ⬜ = Neutral Hashtags

7:00 p.m. — The first set of states finish voting. No surprises here, as Trump is immediately declared the winner of Indiana and Kentucky, while Clinton wins Vermont.

7:00 p.m.
myvote2016 clinton afp florida maga trump imwithher vote vote2016 election evangelicals foxnews16 trumppence16 hillaryclinton apracecall

11:15 p.m.
trumppence16 americaisoverparty brexit donaldtrump trump maga hillary myvote2016 chaos clinton imwithher calexit

2:00 a.m.
imwithher donaldtrump presidenttrump myvote2016 maga trump brexit trumptrain electionresults trumpwins usquotidien hesnotmypresident

3:30 a.m.
brexit hesnotmypresident clinton donaldtrump trumpwins trump maga ripamerica news presidenttrump imwithher notmypresident myvote2016

3:04 a.m. — Trump declared the winner of Wisconsin and Pennsylvania, passing the 270 electoral vote threshold to win the election.
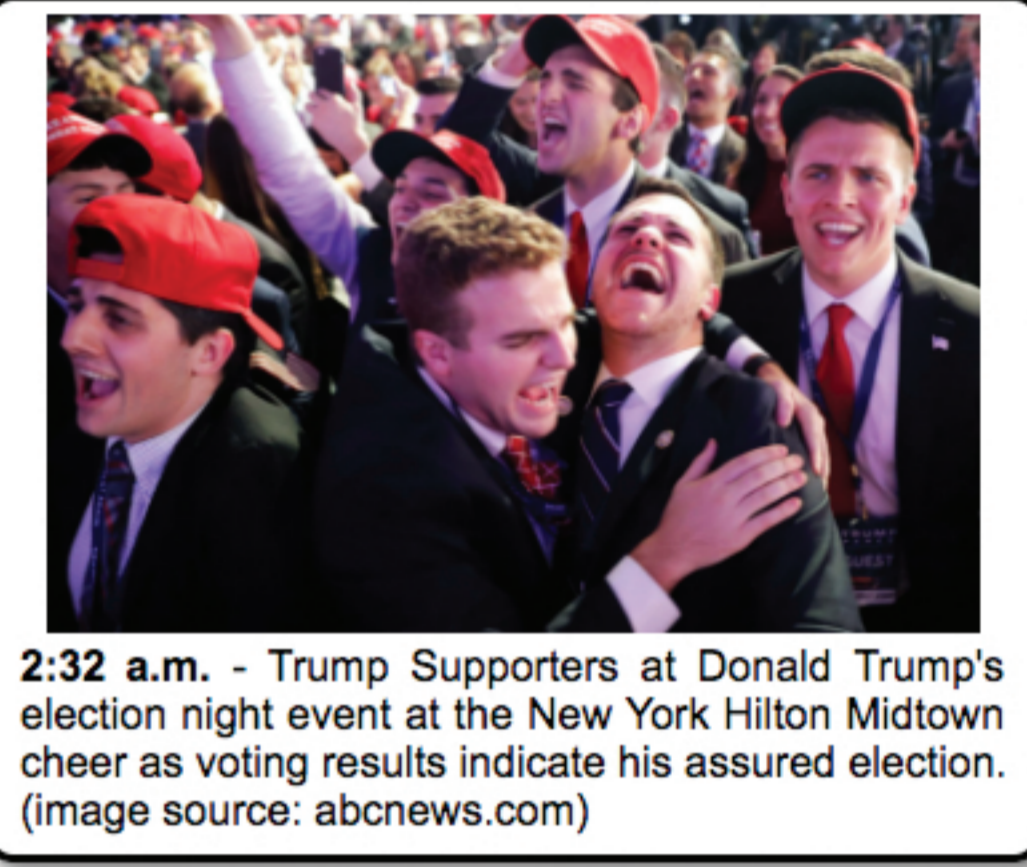

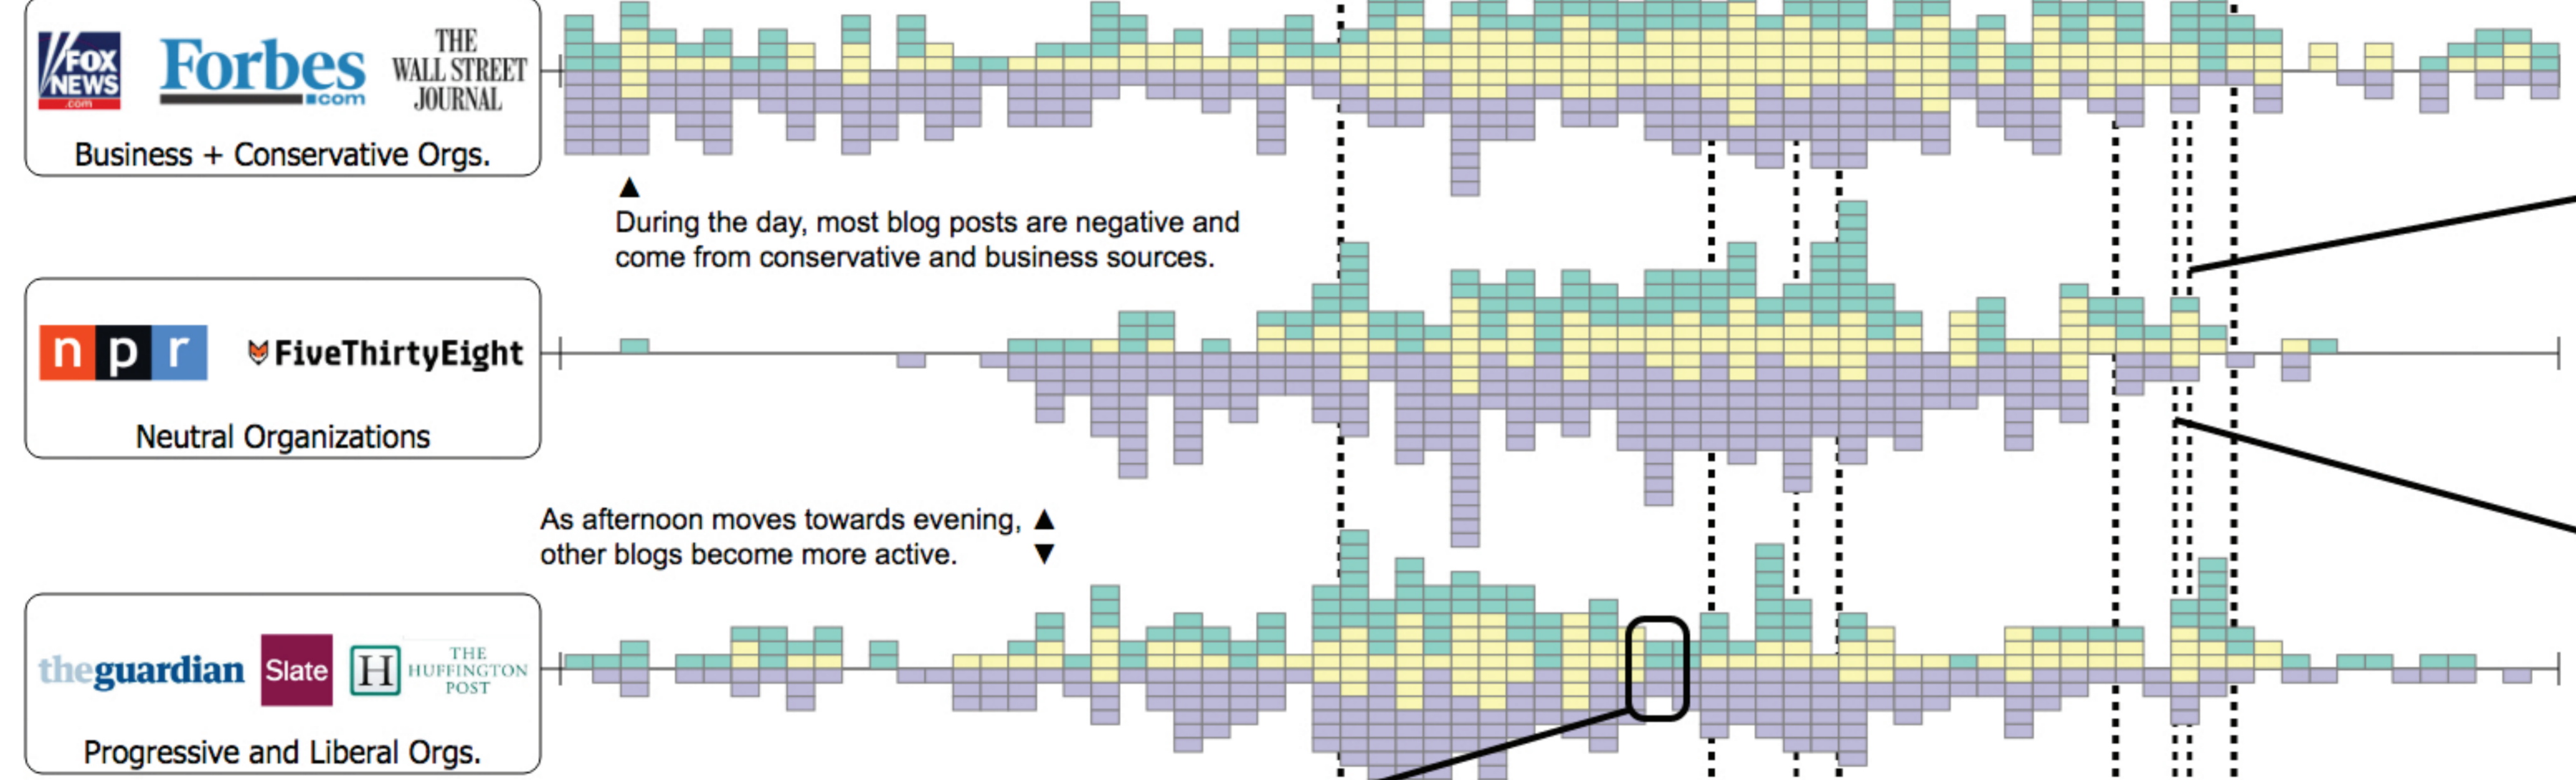

Cumulative Electoral Votes
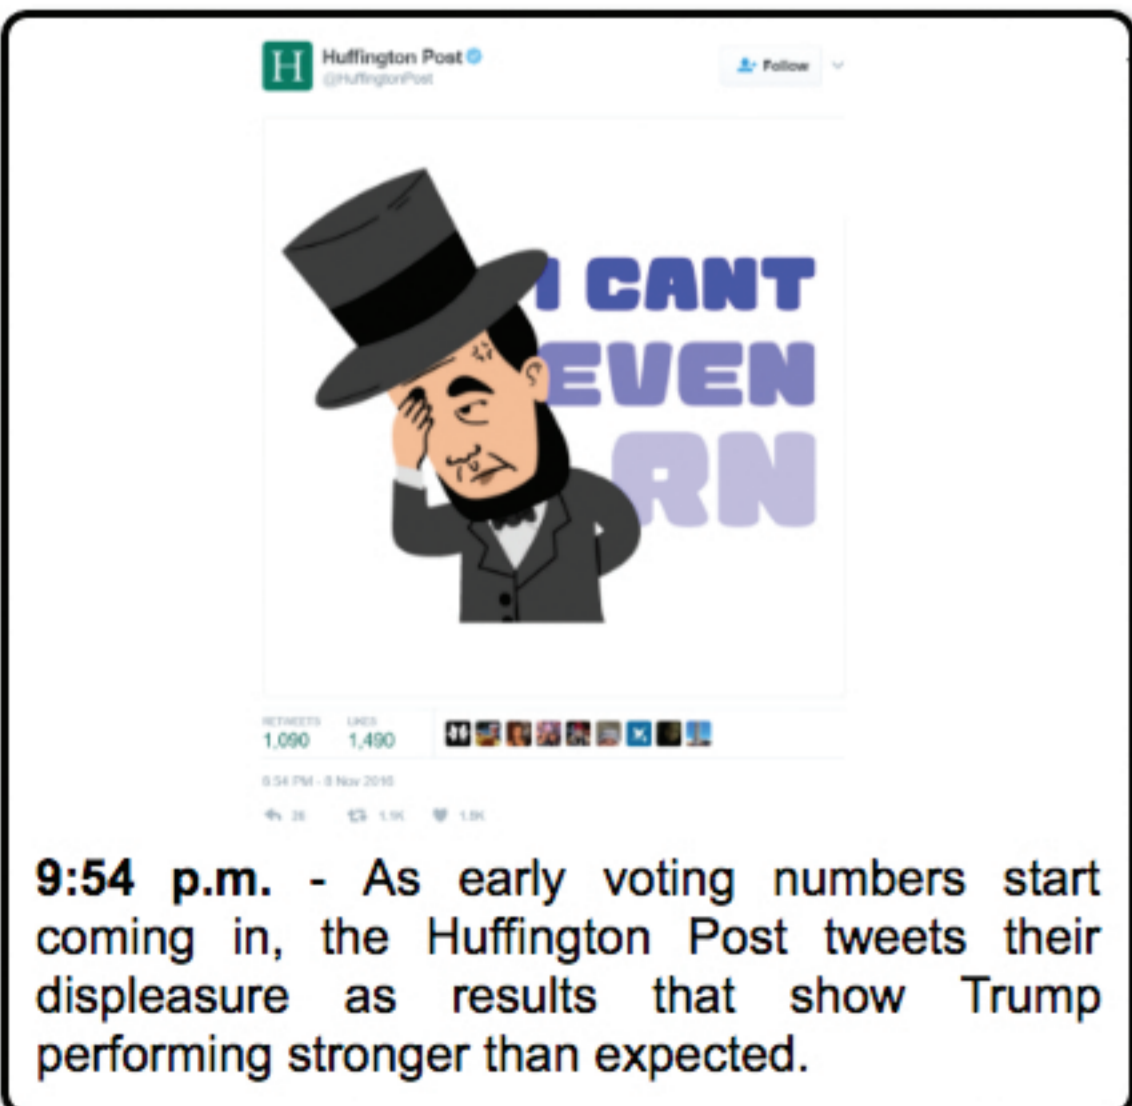

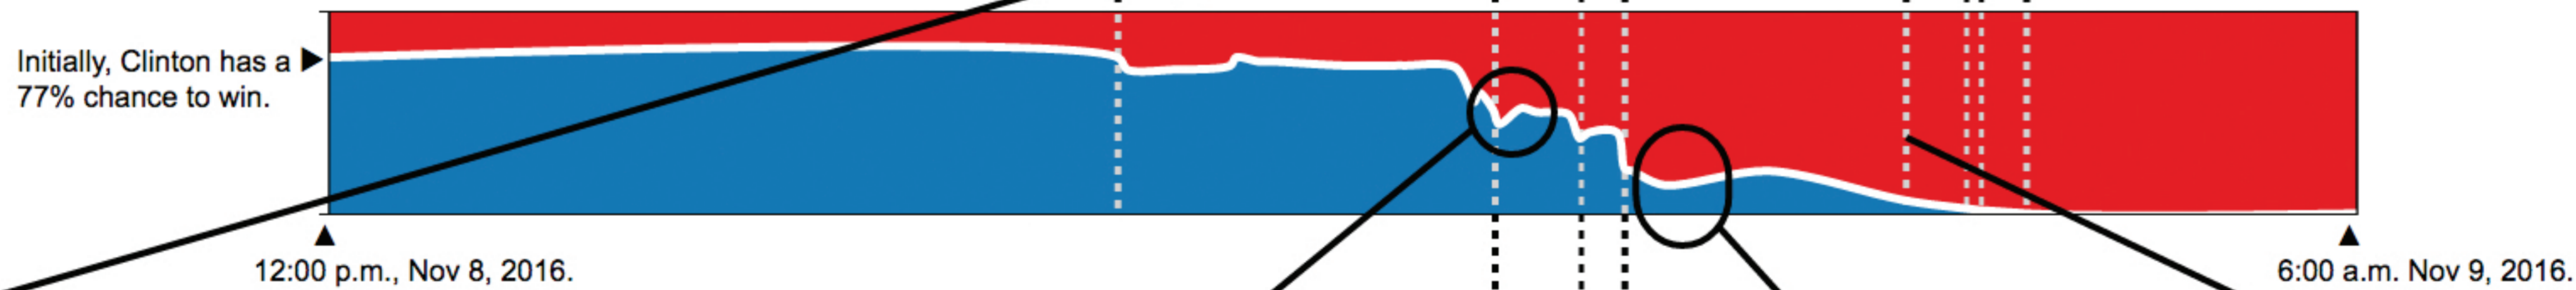

Threshold to win is 270 votes

◄ Trump 273 votes
◄ Clinton 216 votes

Election Live Blogs Organized by Political Leaning

- 🟩 = Blog Posts with Positive Sentiment
- 🟨 = Blog Posts with Neutral Sentiment
- 🟪 = Blog Posts with Negative Sentiment

FOX NEWS   Forbes.com   THE WALL STREET JOURNAL
Business + Conservative Orgs.

▲ During the day, most blog posts are negative and come from conservative and business sources.

npr   FiveThirtyEight
Neutral Organizations

As afternoon moves towards evening, ▲ other blogs become more active. ▼

theguardian   Slate   THE HUFFINGTON POST
Progressive and Liberal Orgs.

2:40 a.m. — Donald J. Trump addresses his supporters at the New York Hilton Midtown. (image source: cnn.com)

2:32 a.m. — Trump Supporters at Donald Trump's election night event at the New York Hilton Midtown cheer as voting results indicate his assured election. (image source: abcnews.com)

Predicted Winner Over Time

Chance to win based on The New York Times forecast model

Initially, Clinton has a 77% chance to win. ▶

▲ 12:00 p.m., Nov 8, 2016.

6:00 a.m. Nov 9, 2016. ▲

9:54 p.m. — As early voting numbers start coming in, the Huffington Post tweets their displeasure as results that show Trump performing stronger than expected.

10:30 p.m. — Supporters cheer as Hillary Clinton wins Virginia, an important block in her 'blue wall' of swing states she is counting on. (image source: npr.com)

Trump wins the swing states of Ohio (10:21 p.m.), North Carolina (11:07 p.m.), and Florida (11:30 p.m.). Clinton's blue wall strategy crumbles as prediction markets dramatically shift to show Trump as the likely winner.

11:55 p.m. — A woman reacts in horror as she watches voting results at Hillary Clinton's election night event at the Jacob K. Javits Convention Center. (image source: npr.com)

2:00 a.m. — Hillary Clinton will not speak on Election Night in what was expected to be a victory speech at the Javits Center in Manhattan, her campaign chairman John Podesta tells the severely diminished crowd. (image and text source: thedailybeast.com)

Summarizing the U.S. Presidential Election Day 2016

This temporal summary image combines several data sources to paint a picture of the United States Presidential Election on November 08, 2016, which saw the heavy favorite, Democrat Hillary Clinton, lose to Republican Donald Trump.